  - A timeline
  - A brief letter of recommendation

Seed Grant Funding

- What?

DH@MSU invites proposals for 2026 Seed Grants to support digital humanities projects in research, teaching, and public engagement across any humanistic or related discipline at MSU. Seed grants are designed to help launch innovative projects that explore digital methods, develop tools, or apply computational approaches to humanistic questions in creative ways.

Seed Grant Funding

- Timeline:
  - Apply in March
  - Work on it during the summer (we will meet three times over the summer to do check-in meetings)
  - Submit a report in the Fall

Seed Grant Funding

- How do I apply?
  - Project Narrative (maximum 1,000 words): Provide a clear description of your project's guiding premises and overall purpose.
  - Budget: Include a breakdown of anticipated expenses with explanations for each item.
  - Timetable: Present a realistic schedule for the summer period that outlines key stages of work and a completion date.
  - Roster of Project Team Members

Project Incubator Program

- Do you have a project idea that you can't seem to get off the ground?
- Do you need access to specific technologies or consultations with experts?
- Are you past the prototype phase of your project and need help getting to the next step?
- Do you have an idea for a grant proposal for a digital scholarship project?
- Are you looking for a community that will give you feedback and support as your project grows?

Project Incubator Program

- What does it look like?
  - Guidance using a project lifecycle management framework that includes planning, defining roles on, delivering, and closing your project
  - Specific advice on applying workshop materials and concepts to your project
  - Access to the DSL Extension, including co-working rooms, high performance computers, and specialized equipment
  - Coordinated access to Library colleagues with relevant expertise - we will facilitate lab and library colleagues' inclusion on project teams, subject to their availability and interest
